Pre-War Germany

How did the Nazis gain control of Germany? The rise of the National Socialist party and the events leading up to the war will be explained in a new program to be heard over WKAR each Tuesday at 4:00 P. M. Speaking from his experiences as an anti-Nazi in Danzig, Dr. Hans Leonhardt will describe what was taking place in Europe during the years 1934 to 1938.

Dr. Leonhardt was, until 1938, a prominent lawyer and civic leader in the Free City of Danzig. As legal advisor to several Consulates and as honorary secretary of the Danzig League of Nations Union, he was active in the movement opposing national socialism, and conferred with groups in England, France and Poland in an attempt to gain support for democratic traditions in that city. In 1938 he was forced to seek refuge in the United States. He is the author of the recent book "Nazi Conquest of Danzig." Dr. Leonhardt is a member of the History and Political Science faculty at Michigan State College.

WKAR RADIO PROGRAM

Liberal Arts

The training of men for war has focused attention on technical fields, many of which are included in the Liberal Arts curriculum. Other academic studies, temporarily obscured, remain as the foundation of our culture and will be the stabilizing influence in the post-war period when our people return to normal living. To provide an informational background for present conditions and to foster continued interest in cultural subjects, the Liberal Arts Division is presenting a program each Wednesday at 5:30 P. M.

Participating on the broadcasts will be representatives from the Departments of Art, Economics, Education, English, Foreign Languages, History and Political Science, Journalism, Mathematics, Music, Psychology, Sociology and Speech. The programs arranged by Dean L. C. Emmons of the Liberal Arts Division, will include many interesting and unusual features.

Farm Question Box

The successful production of food, so vital in this year of war, involves much more than just the planting of crops or a numerical increase in young animals. Many questions of management, feeding, insect control, cultivation and harvesting must be answered before the crop becomes food. To answer these questions from listeners, the Farm Question Box returns to the air each Monday and Friday at 5:30 P. M.

Designed as a clearing house of information for those who have special problems, the panel is drawn from the specialists in the Agricultural Extension Division who are called upon to solve similar problems in their daily work. The chairman for the broadcasts will again be J. G. Hays, Extension Specialist in Dairy Husbandry, who is known throughout the state.

Questions may be sent in by listeners for answer on this program, in fact it is these questions which provide the material for the broadcasts. Questions may be mailed to J. G. Hays, Farm Question Box, WKAR, East Lansing.

Farm Information

To assist in the successful achievement of food production goals, two new programs have been scheduled which will be of interest to all farmers. The problem of adequate labor to plant and harvest crops is extremely important. Each Saturday at 1:05 P. M. A. B. Love, State Supervisor of Emergency Farm Labor, will describe conditions and the plans being made to alleviate the situation. Mr. Love is in charge of organizing and coordinating all the agencies working to provide necessary farm labor.

Losses in farm animals and poultry due to disease can greatly reduce the meat supply. Much of this loss can be prevented through wise management or early control. The Animal Pathology Department will discuss the control and prevention of disease in farm animals in a weekly program each Tuesday at 1:30 P. M. The programs are arranged by B. J. Killham, Extension Specialist in Animal Pathology.

Dramatic Workshop

Producing plays by some of the leading writers for radio, the Dramatic Workshop of the Air broadcasts each Thursday at 4:30 p. m. By special permission of the author, this group of student actors is currently presenting a series of plays by Norman Corwin, one of the most prominent radio playwrights. Mr. Corwin is best known as the author of "Bill of Rights," which was produced on all networks about a year ago, and for the series, "This Is War."

The Dramatic Workshop is directed by Joe Calloway, instructor of radio in the Department of Speech.

Summer Schedules

This is the final issue of the WKAR printed program bulletin until October. As has been the custom, no advance programs will be mailed out during the summer but a full schedule of broadcasting will be maintained. The station will be heard each day from 7:00 A. M. to 7:00 P. M., Eastern War Time and many of the favorite features will be continued throughout the summer months. For detailed review of the days' programs, hear the Calendar for the Day each morning at eight o'clock.
